Hayden Hurst Family Foundation

The Hayden Hurst Family Foundation was established in 2018 by current Carolina Panthers tight end, Hayden Hurst.

After being drafted out of The Bolles School in 2012 to play baseball for the Pittsburgh Pirates, Hayden struggled with pitch control in the minor leagues, eventually spiraling into depression and alcohol and drug abuse. Therapy and family support enabled Hayden to eventually pursue his passion – football. Hayden left the game of baseball and walked onto the University of South Carolina football team in the summer of 2015. There, he would become the all-time leader in career receptions for a tight end, and grab the school record for most receptions and receiving yards in a season by a tight end. He became the first sophomore in school history to be elected team captain, and in 2017 was named first team All SEC tight end. The Baltimore Ravens made him their first-round pick in the 2018 NFL Draft. Hayden was traded to the Atlanta Falcons in 2020. Hayden spent the 2022 season as a Cincinnati Bengal, and in 2023, he came full circle back to his college days, signing a 3-year contract with the Carolina Panthers.

An outspoken advocate for mental health awareness, Hayden established the Hayden Hurst Family Foundation to provide funding to programs that address mental health issues and provide mental health services to teens and adolescents.

The Youth Crisis Center

Founded in 1974 as Florida's first runaway program, Youth Crisis Center has grown to one of the largest and best-known nationally accredited providers of services for youth and families. YCC's emphasis on care is for those who have been exposed to traumatic situations such as divorce, homelessness, relocations, loss of life, bullying and abuse.

YCC provides a variety of services for children, adolescents, young adults, parents and families. YCC's mission is to build a healthier community by empowering young people and families to rise above adversity.
